

August 5, 2001

Achnacarry Church Service

August 5, 2001

Achnacarry Church Service

Located just a few hundred feet down the road from the gates to Lochiel's Estate is beautiful St. Ciaran's, built in 1908 - as Lochiel reminded those in attendance "just two years before I was born!" Set amidst English oaks and with a wonderful, scenic view of Achnacarry located just to the rear of the church, its setting is idyllic.

Shown here is Reverend David M. Anderson, greeting the church-going Camerons. The morning, like so many, featured on-and-off rain showers - never too intense - just enough to keep Lochaber in it's beautiful hues of green from peak to glen.

August 5, 2001

Achnacarry Church Service

The non-denominational service brought Camerons together at St. Ciaran's. Donald Andrew Cameron read from John, Chapter 15, which in turn was featured in Reverend Anderson's sermon, tied in with the theme "Aonaibh Ri Cheile." Only one hundred Camerons were able to hear this sermon, which wonderfully explored the "unite" motto of the Camerons with the reading, since the church building has very limited seating. Quite simply, it was a beautiful service in all aspects.